Walter Worthen appeared before Judge Ritchie yesterday afternoon on order to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court in failing to pay his divorced wife alimony for the support of herself and children. The divorce was granted in 1894 on the ground of failure to support, and drunkenness, and the defendent was ordered to pay $25 a month allmeny. He paid the allmeny until October last, and then, according to Mrn. Worthen's testimony, he ceased paying and refused to contribute even a dollar to her support or that of his seven children. Mrs. Worthen testified that she worked hard and supported the children as best she could, but was now sick and unable to work, and if their father did not do something for them they would have to go to the poor house. port, and drunkenness, and the defen-to pay or support his children.

On cross-examination it appeared that Wortien spent considerable money in entertaining other ladies. He was an expert dancer and attended the dancing academies two or three nights a week and danced away the hours, while his seven little children went hungry and barefooted. He also made several pleasure trips into the country for a week at a time and foliand with others in entertaining and giving others in entertaining and giving parties to his friends. ### Receiver Mason Anthorized to Compromise Certain Claims.

The petition of Receiver Mason of the Salt Lake City Copper Manufac-

The petition of Receiver Mason of the Salt Lake City Copper Manufacturing company, asks for authority to compromise certain claims against the company and to confirm the sale of 1,000 tons of ore from the dump of the Copperopolis and for permission to sell another thousand tons of the ore. In reference to the settlement of the Amos claims it was set up in the petition that in March, 1893, under a contract between Mr. Green and certain trustees, the 160 acres of land was to be given to the copper plant on certain conditions. The cost of the works when completed was to be $500.000, exclusive of the ground. Three hundred men were to be employed. A deed to forty acres was to be given when $100.000 had been expended upon the ground; a deed to the balance was to be given when $250.000 had been expended upon the ground; a deed to the balance was to be given when $250.000 had been expended upon the ground. Mr. Petit originally owned the land, and an association called the North Salt Lake association formed a pool to buy this land from Petit and contribute it to the copper plant under said agreement. They were to pay Petit for the land $25.000. They actually paid him $10.000 and Mr. Ames, one of the members of the pool, gave security on his personal property to Petit for upwards of $20.000 and took a lot of donations, which turned out worthless, for his security. At that time Mr. Green authorized Colonel Estees and James H. Bacon to go on the bond to the anount of $5.500 which liability the James H. Bacon to go on the bond to the amount of $5.500 which liability the copper plant subsequently assumed, and which the copper company consid-ered a lien on the land to that and which the copper company considered a lien on the land to that amount.

Early in January, 1894, as Mr. Singer will remember, 'Amos commenced an action before Judge Merritt to enjoin the delivery of the deeds for 120 acres of land. This motion Judge Merritt denied upon the ground that they could file a lis pendens of record, which would amply secure their rights, if any. The Arros action was to secure a lien to the amount of $22,000 upon the ground that the copper plant had failed to live up to its contract as to time and expenditure and in other respects. Subsequent to that action, and probably since Mr. Singer left here, Jennings, Kinney and others on behalf of other contributors, intervened and set up claims and liens to large siditional amounts. This action and cross-actions have not been tried as yet, and the unfortunate part of it is that in Trent's litigation against Fraser and Chalmers it developed, and it was showed up that the representations made to the committee were based upon padded and swelled contracts with Fraser and Chalmers. Phase facis have all become public now and are liable to play a bad part on any trial. Those who were familiar with it originally, conceded a liability to the amount of $5,500, that is the amount that Colonel Estees went security for as part of the purchase price, and for which his estate is now circlinting a lien upon the land. In addition to that $5,500 it takes $5,400 to settle this matter and wipe off the state, and the question is as to the advicability of so doing or running the risk of a trial. If it is settled it makes the mortgage a first lien. If any claims were to be established they would be prior liens to the mortgages.

The receiver was authorized to make a settlement with G. D. Amos and Samnel Westerfield, administrators of the estate if Stepher A. Estes, deceased, and L. D. Kinney, of their claims upon the property of the Copper company, the actions to enforce which are now pending in the circuit court for the sum of $10,000. The sale of the first thousand tons of Copperoplis ore was approved, and the receiver authorized to sell another thousand tons to the Pennsylvania Smelling company on the same terms as the thousand tons Judgment Rendered.

Judge Ritchie yesterday rendered his ision in the case of the Great Salt of Divorce-Receiver of the Late Lake and Hot Springs Railway com-

Lake and Hot Springs Railway company vs. J. S. Cameron and the Salt Lake Rapid Transit company. His honor ordered that the poles be set back to the center line of the street by the Rapid Transit company.

The suit was the result of a dispute as to the rights of the parties to lay their railroad tracks on Third West street. Both have franchises to portions of that street, and each alleged that the other has encroached on their respective rights, crected poles, iald rails, etc., on or in too close proximity to the portion of the street occupied by the other.

The defendant failed to appear and the decree was granted and the plaintiff allowed to resume her maiden name of Anna E. Hauser.

Thomas Hends was convicted March 4. 1836, in Salt Lake county of the crime of flourishing a deadly weapon and was sentenced to sixty days in the county jail and to pay a fine of $100. Judge Wenger submitted a statement of the case, saying the sentence was none too severe, and the board decided to allow him to serve his term.

Josiah Simms pleaded guility of the crime of burglary in February, 1596, at Ogden, and was sentenced to fifteen months by Judge Rolapp. Accompanying his petition were letters from neighbors testifying to his good character, and another petition signed by numerous citizens representing that the petitioner was drunk at the time and that it was his first offense. Judge Rolapp declined to recommend a pardon and the application was denied.

Wallace McNeil, alias E. H. Fisher, presented rather a nervy petition, which was, in effect, a confession of the crime of train robbery and two other crimes, but which stated that the petitioner considered that innamuch as he had served one sentence, and that the others had been committed to procure money to liberate persons who had been unjustly convicted of his first crime, he should be pardoned.

Modesto Sicher was convicted of voluntary manslaughter in December. 1894, and was sentenced to five years and six months. Accompanying his petition was another signed by 500 persons. Judge Judd, who prosecuted the applicant, sent in a letter stating that Sicher's offense was a cold blooded murder, and that he should have been convicted of murder in the first degree. In view of Judge Judd's opinion the board declined to grant a pardon. This was the second time Sicher has sought executive clemency.
